Home Again.

Dr. E. T. WASGATT,

(From the Pennsylvania College of Dental Surgery)

Having had the rooms formerly occupied by him at

2 1-2 Kenduskeag Bridge,

But which was burned out in the recent fire, repaired, remodeled, and fitted up in the best manner, with all the modern instruments and appliances for the performance of all kinds of operations in Dentistry, begs leave to inform his old friends and patrons, and the public generally, that he is at home again in the same old spot, where he would be happy to see them and wait upon them with anything wanted in the Dentistry line.

He would call special attention to his new apparatus for generating Nitrous Oxide Gas, Sprague's Patent—the only generator that makes a pure and tasteless gas, and the only one of the kind ever in this city.

He continues also his specialty of administering ether spray, which is fast taking the place of the old method of inhalation, being entirely safe to the most delicate persons.

Please give him a call at his new rooms.

Chalybeate Spring Water!

BOTTLED FROM

THE SPRING, AT KATAHDIN IRON WORKS, ME.

This water holds in solution a large proportion of IRON, with SULPHUR and a trace of ARSENIC, and, from its combination, is one of the best means of restoring an impoverished blood to a healthy state.

It is peculiarly adapted to relieve, debilitated conditions of the urinary organs, and in many cases has completely cured persons who have tried many other medicines without any relief.

It can be taken at any hour of the day—but after meals is preferable—in quantities from one half pint to two pints per day. It blackens the stools and produces other changes that occur in taking iron in any form.

THE DIAMOND GLASSES,

Manufactured by J. E. SPENCER & CO., New York which are now offered to the public, are pronounced by all the celebrated Opticians of the World to be the MOST PERFECT, Natural, Artificial help to the human eye ever known.

They are ground under their own supervision, from minute Crystal Pebbles, melted together, and derive their name, "Diamond" on account of their hardness and brilliancy.

The Scientific Principle on which they are constructed brings the core or centre of the lens directly in front of the eye, producing a clear and distinct vision, as in the natural healthy sight, and preventing all unpleasant sensations, such as glimmering and wavering of sight, dizziness, &c., peculiar to all others in use.

They are mounted in the finest manner, in frames of the best quality, of all materials used for that purpose. Their finish and durability cannot be surpassed.

CAUTION.—None genuine unless bearing their trade mark <> stamped on every frame.

GENERAL SHERMAN AND JOHNSTON'S ARMY.

The following is the full text of General Sherman's speech at the recent anniversary gathering of the army of the Cumberland in this city. As General Sherman rose to respond to the toast, "From Chattanooga to Atlanta—one hundred days' under fire," he was greeted with tremendous and long-continued cheering. The soldiers of that beloved leader mounted the chairs, swung their hats, and shouted till the very flags above them, borne "from Chattanooga to Atlanta" by his victorious legions, seemed to wave in response.—At length all became quiet and crowded around the speaker, eager to hear. The confusion which had entirely prevented many of the speakers from being heard at all was entirely hushed. General Sherman said:—

You have already been told by General Palmer that here we are all equal and no more. If I was your commander now, I should command silence, but I thank you cordially for the respect and kindness you have shown me by becoming so quiet as you have. "From Chattanooga to Atlanta—one hundred days under fire!" It was my great good fortune to succeed to the army when all its members had been moulded into soldiers. It was well accoutered, equipped and commanded. It had good division, brigade, regimental and company comanders, and all the soldiers were schooled in the art of war. It only devolved upon me, therefore, to do what a general should, direct the heads of the columns. It was my lot to command the column of the grand army that moved through Georgia. I was well supported, having such able soldiers as Thomas commanding the center, McPherson the right wing, and Schofield the left wing and backed by an army of true loyal, brave and intelligent men. I well remember that morning in May when over the telegraph was flashed to me the order for the army to move. We advanced in three armies, bearing directly down upon Joe Johnson, at Dalton. We all remember when we first saw upon those hills the first blue puffs of smoke from the rifles of the skirmishers, followed by the boom of the cannon, which told that the battle had begun. From that time till the last gun of the campaign was fired, 110 days, it was one unceasing battle. Not only was the crack of the rifle our reveille, but the sound of the cannon in the distance soothed us to sleep at night, and when the sound was hushed we awoke from sleep. So long as the firing of the pickets told us that they were awake we were secure, but when all was quiet we felt disturbed and anxious. I wish I had time and it were appropriate for me to follow in detail the movements of those armies throughout the whole of that devious campaign, over mountains, across streams, and through those dense woods and thickets. I have only time on this occasion to give you a few points, but before I proceed further I want to thank you for your silence and attention. It was my hope and desire to crush the army of Johnson by a single blow, and while you of the army of the Cumberland were climbing the rough sides of Rocky Face, I know what you did not, that a brave and well-appointed army was moving to the right upon a far more important line than that you occupied. I listened anxiously for the boom of the guns of McPherson, who had moved through the Snake Creek Gap and was advancing on Resaca. When the welcome sound came to my ears I thought Joe Johnson was my victim, but my plan was not entirely successful. Then all the armies passed down through Snake Creek Gap like a stream of lava from a volcano upon Resaca. Here I came within an ace of accomplishing my purpose, Johnson only escaping by a few minutes, as I have had it from the lips of Johnson himself since the war. Then we moved down the valleys to Cassville, where I supposed Johnson would fight. He has told me since the war, and shown me a copy of his order to that effect, that he intended to give battle on the range of hills below Cassville.—He said that he had been out all day and at night, when worn and weary, Hood asked him to supper, the subject of the coming battle was discussed, and Hood told him that was impossible, but Hood reiterated the statement, and Johnson could not go into the battle when one of the most trusty corps commanders was dissatisfied. The next morning when I had expected to commence the decisive battle of the campaign, I found the enemy's position vacant. Twenty years ago, when a lieutenant of artillery, I passed on horseback through Altoona Gap, I knew the place and its advantages for defence, and I surely thought Johnson would make a stand there. I was not a litle surprised that he did not, and we had no choice but to push on, for we would be satisfied only with victory.—Below Altoona we met Johnson at New-Hope church—that "hell-hole" rightly named. The trees there yet bear the marks of that conflict, torn and sundered as if by lightning.—The hardest fighting of the campaign was during the few days we confronted Johnson at that point. There was no clear ground; it was all a dense thicket, and none of us will soon forget the fearful boom and crack of these bloody days. We pressed on and at length reached the railroad. Then the heavy rains came on, the roads were well nigh impassable, the wagon-trains were left behind and at length, with the soldiers almost stripped and so dirty that one could scarce tell what color they were, we arrived at Kenesaw.—There the war became more interesting. We all remember that assault and deplore the loss. But such a war. But one day I saw in early morning, with my telescope, the blue coats clambering up the sides of the mountain. Eagerly I watched them, and at length I saw one man creep to the summit, peep over for an instant, and then wave his hand to his comrades, as if saying, "Come on, boys!" I could almost hear his voice, although I was four miles away, and I knew that the enemy had gone. The general went on to narrate the pressing of the rebel army across the Chattahoochie, on the banks of which they spent the Fourth of July. The rebels supposed he would stop there, but he did not —he was bound to go.

He detailed briefly the crossing of the Chattahoochie; the flank movement of Schofield to Stone Mountain; the battle of Peach Tree Creek, which Hooker would always remember; the closing in of the lines around the fated city of Atlanta; the fierce attacks of Hood, whose army was hurled back with frightful slaughter; the grand flank movement, after five weeks' siege, below Atlanta, resulting in its evacuation; and gave a summing up of the results of the campaign, which was in fact a continuous battle for 110 days. He closed with an eloquent tribute to the army of the Cumberland. He said he thought the armies of Tennessee and Ohio sometimes moved faster, but when he advanced the army of the Cumberland, in the centre, he always knew that if he went away, when he came back he would find it there! We regret that the extreme lateness of the hour will not permit us to give General Sherman's speech entire. It was not delivered till nearly midnight, being one of the last on the list, and was entirely extemporaneous. It was full of intense interest to the old soldiers, and he was often applauded to the echo. When he sat down cheer after cheer went up for the grand leader. A moment after he sat down, one of the soldiers, a little "happy," leaned over the table and said to him, "We don't think much of you, Uncle Billy!" but there was more in that negative than could be expressed by the strongest affirmation.

JOHN H. LYNDE, - - PROPRIETOR.

THURSDAY, DEC 1, 1870.

A "POISONOUS" LIBEL

The young women of Maine would doubtless be pleased to ascertain where all those sensational stories, which hold them up for public sympathy as victims to the fatal appliances of the toilet, have originated It is but a short time since the whole press of the country was repeating with horror the details of a tragedy, in which a maiden of the Pine Tree State was said to have been partially devoured by the jute chignon bug—bears, and even now the frightful tale occasionally reappears in some one of our exchanges

It was intimated at the time when the Waterville story was contradicted, that the reports were circulated in the interest of dealers in hair, who would increase their sales by creating a panic in the jute market, and this seemed a plausible supposition, but the persistency with which this blow at the mental equanimity of our fair friends has been followed up by other equally startling announcements, would strongly induce a belief that some victimized old bachelor has crept into the editorial sanctum, and is using a quill steeped in the gall of bitterness, to wreak his vengeance on the sex.

In a late issue of the Boston Post, we are editorially informed that the sober citizens of our State have become alarmed at the prevalence of renovating and beautifying processes among our young women and others who are not so young, and especially the use of arsenic for whitening the complexion It states that by constant use and a gradual increase of the dose, a young lady may educate herself to take with impunity an amount ordinarily sufficient to kill half a dozen strong men, and that the use has become so common that a Maine Arsenic Law is seriously contemplated

This is more startling than the jute discovery, for, whereas it was easy to quiet all apprehension on that head, by tossing the suspected chignon into the fire, one turns pale at the thought of a feminine community addicted to a wholesale consumption of "cold pizen" It may be a consolation to some paternal guardian of a numerous flock to be assured that "there will be little difficulty in detecting the offenders, as the unnatural brightness of the eye and deadly pallor of the skin are as distinct as the brandied marks upon the toper's nose" A careful noting of these symptoms will identify the victims, and enable the watchful parent to administer surreptitious antidotes through the medium of coffee or muffins and thus arrest the ravages of the destroyer

The strangest circumstance in this connection, is that our attention has not been at once attracted to these pallid faced, glittering eyed devotees, who are said to be so rapidly increasing in numbers, and a rigid scrutiny of every passing face during several days—in which we have carried our earnestness of regard to an extent that has elicited doubts of our sanity—has convinced us that either the vice has failed to reach this favored section, or our friend of the chignon hoax has been trying his hand at a new invention. We have heard stories of this complexion for years, and have no doubt that here and there some silly school girl may be found, who prefers eating her slate pencils in the hope of whitening her cheeks, rather than wear them out legitimately in solving the riddles of mathematics, and it is quite probable that cases have occurred in which vanity has induced a tampering with poisonous drugs; but we are altogether incredulous of the general prevalence of such dangerous habits and do not believe we shall be compelled to create a State Constabulary to prevent the self destruction of our girls.

The natural desire to preserve or enhance their personal attractions is doubtless as strong in New England as elsewhere, and our ladies would properly resent any imputation that they lacked either the genius or taste for adornment A due regard to the requirements of the toilet is an essential element of feminine culture, but refinement brings discretion in this as in other respects and it is unreasonable to suppose that any considerable number of ladies so intelligent as those of Maine, would acquire habits so foolish in their purpose and ruinous in their results We do not expect that they will emancipate themselves from the sway of fashion or cease to do homage to that indescribable something comprehended in the feminine idea of "style"—They will torture the hair into artistic dishevelment, indulge in miraculous hats and balance themselves on precarious boot-heels, in obedience to the demands of custom, but while nature is so liberal of the charms which have made our ladies the envy of the land, there are few so shallow and reckless as to ruin their health by habitual poisoning for the sake of producing a sickly pallor the reverse of beautiful.

"Outside of New England some peculiar ideas are prevalent with regard to Eastern customs, and the most remarkable descriptions of our habits find credulous listeners, but the Boston Post, being located within the limits of "Beans and Brown Bread," should know that all New England women do not talk through their noses, nor march to church in platoons keeping time to the audible mastication of spruce gum, and we wonder that it has given a ready belief to the story that the women of Maine are destroying themselves with arsenic We might retort with a whisper of the horrid charge that the Boston ladies have large feet, but that would be based on hearsay, and would, perhaps, be too severe, so we will content ourselves with assuring the editor, that while we have recently read that a young man in some western city died of lead colic from kissing an enamelled young lady, we are positively assured by several young gentlemen that such luxuries have been indulged in this vicinity—by those fortunate enough to be so favored—without experiencing the slightest unpleasant consequences

Gen Butler, in his Boston speech, most rashly ventured into the field of Biblical criticism He spoke of "a portion of that prayer so much more beautiful and appropriate in the original than as translated by English Bishops, "Suffer us not to fall into temptation" This, says a writer in the Boston Advertiser, "is a reading which Norton did not discover, nor Noyes, nor De Wette, which Folsom has not found, nor Sharpe, nor Meyer nor Tischendorff,"—and it is recommended that the General be sent Minister to England, if for no other reason, that he may at least preside over the Commission now revising the English version

The action of the Tammany canvassers on Tuesday removes all danger of a tie in the New York assembly, and gives the democrats a majority of one. The method employed in reaching this result was peculiar In the 7th assembly district of New York city the republicans claimed that their candidate, Mr. H N. Twombly, was elected by a clear majority But if Twombly had been declared elected the assembly would have been tied between the parties, and this desperate crisis justified desperate measures. So the Tammany managers held the returns in the 7th district until Monday, when they deliberately counted Twombly out and their man in. The victory may prove to be dearly won.

The Border Times, of Weston, Platte county, Mo, hoists the name of B. Gratz Brown for the Presidency in 1872.

The Tribune is puzzled It says According to the veracious London telegrams of The World, the British Ministry communicated to our esteemed friend's correspondent the points of Prince Gortschakoff's dispatch a day and a half before it arrived. The next morning (several hours before the dispatch was received) Lord Granville carried the dispatch to the Queen That afternoon the Ministry resigned. The next day the Cabinet met to consider the dispatch (which had come to hand the night before,) after which we believe (but here the story becomes a little confused) they resign again "On Saturday "the "Cabinet was again quarrelling," and appointing meetings for various days this week—with the intention we presume, of resigning some more.

The Governor of Virginia did not issue a thanksgiving proclamation, and the Petersburg Index intimates that it was because it is too much of a New-England festival and the Virginians would prefer to give their especial thanks for whatever especial favors and privileges they enjoy on Christmas But the editor of the Richmond Enquirer, nevertheless, enumerated on Thursday morning what he thought were his especial causes for thanksgiving, these being mainly that he "was not as other men are" Thus he said "We are thankful that we were born on the soil of old Virginia, we are thankful that we were not born in Vermont or Massachusetts, we are thankful that we are not a Radical or a carpet-bagger, or, what is worse and meaner, a Southern scalawag And we are thankful that we cannot observe to-day for the same reasons, (disguised though they may be) that U. S Grant has seen proper, in his party proclamation, to demand that it be especially honored"

It has been a recent custom in N York city, to arouse the Tammany voters by the tolling of an immense bell, which mounted on a cart and surrounded with transparencies, is drawn through the streets until a late hour in the night, to the infinite disgust of quiet inhabitants The N. Y. Times, having mentioned that Poe in his melodious discant upon bell-peals, omitted the dismal clang of the bell politica[illegible] it supplies the deficiency thus

The Milwaukee Sentinel, referring to the enormous pew rentals of some of the New York and Brooklyn churches, asks

Why do not professional christians who can afford to buy, and then to pay the annual tax on, a $3 000 pew, give their money in a way that would provide thirty pews instead of one and then offer the twenty nine to whosoever will come in and listen to the gospel These are questions that the pious Dives of our day will have to answer before long

Mrs Stanton in her recent lecture in Milwaukee is reported to have argued substantially, that there should be the same freedom and voluntary action in divorce as in marriage That when the relation became distasteful to either party, that either party should be at liberty to annul it

THE BAY AND RIVER R. R The Portland Star refers to to the proposed road from Rockland to Bangor, as follows

"The movers in the interest of the Bay & River railway, from Rockland to Bangor, seem to be in earnest and to be meeting with considerable success But a road of such manifest significance as this would be, uniting all those rich towns along the Penobscot river and bay, will surely command public attention and must, sooner or later, be built — And at the outset we do sincerely hope that there will be no jealousies that will hurt this prospect. It is said that the road is not needed, since there is such splendid water communication But it must be remembered that this is interrupted a portion of the year, and also that no water transit can alone satisfy the demands of this age The P & K, road, even in the summer time, has all the freight it can carry, and that despite the sharp river competition, and its business is every year increasing

Such a road as this would give the Knox & Lincoln a new importance, and at the same time save a vast business to be done for the benefit of the State, which is now in the interest of Boston These are considerations that are too apparent to thinking people to need any great elaboration

The Revisers of the New Testament have lately finished their fourth session The interest in the work is increasing with each meeting, and the progress such that there is now every reason to believe it will be completed within a reasonable time There is, however, a clear intention on the part of the revisers to do their work thoroughly, and to subject it when done to a careful reconsideration. Nothing will be really settled till the second and final revision The attendance of members is good, there having been twenty-two members present on most of the days

THE LAST EXPEDIENT A young man who actually desired wealth, was visited by his Satanic Majesty, who tempted him to dispose of his soul for eternity, if he could be supplied on earth with all the money he could use. The bargain was concluded—the devil was to supply the money, and was at last to have the soul, unless the young man could spend more money than the devil could furnish

Years passed away—the man married, was extravagant in his living, built palaces, speculated wildly, lost and gave away fortunes, and yet his coffers were always full —He turned politician, and bribed his way to honor and fame, without reducing his pile of gold. He became a fillibuster, and fitted out ships and armies, but his banker honored all his drafts. He went to New York to live, and paid the usual rates of interest on all the money he could borrow—but though the devil made faces when he came to pay the bills, yet they were all paid. One expedient after another failed The devil counted the time, only two years that he must wait for the soul—and he mocked the efforts of the despairing man. One more trial was resolved upon—the man started a newspaper! The devil growled at the end of the first quarter, was savage in six months, melancholy in nine, and broke, dead broke, at the end of the year. So the newspaper went down, but the soul was saved.—Ex

DIAMOND HUNTERS. A number of Bostonians are about to proceed to Africa to seek the shining treasures of the diamond fields The British bark George T. Kemp, Capt. Whiting, arrived at that port, Monday, fresh from the South African fields The vessel will remain in port a few days, and on her return will take out as passengers about fifty citizens. They are mostly miners, who have had experience in California and Australia, and are familiar with the privations and excitement of a miner's life

DR SCHENCK ADVISES CONSUMPTIVES TO GO TO FLORIDA IN WINTER

Having for the last thirty five years devoted my whole time and attention to the study of lung diseases and consumption I feel that I understand fully the course that ought to be pursued to restore a tolerably bad case of diseased lungs to healthy soundness The first and most important step is for the patient to avoid taking cold and the best of all places on this continent for this purpose in winter is Florida well down in the State, where the temperature is regular and not subject to such variations as in more northern latitudes I alaska is a point I can recommend A good hotel is kept there by Peterman I last winter I saw several persons there whose lungs had been badly diseased [illegible]

[illegible] know that where they are used in strict accordance with my directions, they will do the work that is required This accomplished nature will do the rest The physician who prescribes for cold cough or night sweats and then advises the patient to walk or ride out every day will be sure to have a corpse on his hands before long

My plan is, to give my three medicines in accordance with the printed directions, except in some cases where a free use of the Mandrake Pills is necessary My object is to give tone to the stomach —to get up a good appetite It is always a good sign when a patient begins to grow hungry I have hopes of such With a relish for food and the gratification of that relish comes good blood and with it more flesh which is closely followed by a healing of the lungs—then the cough loosens and abates the creeping chills and clammy night sweats no longer prostrate and annoy and the patient gets well provided he avoids taking cold

Now there are many consumptives who have not the means to go to Florida The question may be asked is there no hope for such? Certainly there is My advice to such is and ever has been to stay in a warm room during the winter with a temperature of about seventy degrees which should be kept regularly at that point by means of a thermometer Let such a patient take his exercise within the limits of the room by walking up and down as much as his strength will permit in order to keep up a healthy circulation of the blood I have cured thousands by this system and can do so again Consumption is as easily cured as any other disease if it is taken in time and the proper kind of treatment is pursued The fact stands undisputed on record that Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup Mandrake Pills and Seaweed Tonic have cured very many of what seemed to be hopeless cases of consumption Go where you will you will be almost certain to find some poor consumptive who has been rescued from the very jaws of death by their use

So far as the Mandrake Pills are concerned everybody should keep a supply of them on hand They act on the liver better than calomel and leave none of its hurtful effects behind In fact they are excellent in all cases where a purgative medicine is required If you have partaken too freely of fruit and diarrhoea ensues, a dose of the Mandrakes will cure you If you are subject to sick headache, take a dose of the Mandrakes and they will relieve you in two hours If you would obviate the effect of a change of water or the too free indulgence in fruit take one of the Mandrakes every night and you may then drink water and eat watermelons pears apples plums peaches or corn, without the risk of being made sick by them They will protect those who live in damp situations against chills and fevers Try them They are perfectly harmless They can do you only good

I have abandoned my professional visits to Boston and New York but continue to see patients at my office No 15 North Sixth Street, Philadelphia every Saturday from 9 A M to 3 P M Those who wish a thorough examination with the Respirometer will be charged five dollars The Respirometer declares the exact condition of the lungs, and patients can readily learn whether they are curable or not But I desire it distinctly understood that the value of my medicines depends entirely upon their being taken strictly according to directions

In conclusion, I will say that when persons take my medicines and their systems are brought into a healthy condition thereby, they are not so liable to take cold; yet no one with diseased lungs can bear a sudden change of atmosphere without the liability of greater or less irritation of the bronchial tubes

Full directions in all languages accompany my medicines so explicit and clear that any one can use them without consulting me and can be bought from any druggist

LET CONGRESS BE ASKED TO PASS THE following laws by all who love themselves —If any Spirit shall take possession of any persons body and instigate them to, or themselves use said body to pollute it either by committing the crime of self pollution, (it being the worshipping of the abomination that maketh desolate, spoken of by the Spirit of the Lord to Daniel the Prophet, 11th Chap and 31st verse, and 12th Chap and 11th verse, and by Christ the Son of God, Matthew 24th chap and 15th verse), or shall use such body to lie or kill they being the worship of the Devil, as Christ said he was a murderer and liar from the beginning. Or shall use such body to commit adultery, or fornication, they being the worship of the Beast, Revelations 13 Chap and 1st and 2d verses—to do as beasts do is to worship a beast—or shall do any manner of evil, or shall interfere or stop any man or woman buying or selling because he has not the mark of the Beast, Revelations, 13th Chap, 16th and 17th verses That it shall be perfectly satisfactory for second death or the Son of Man to take away or kill said Spirit if found in the jurisdiction of the United States, and that too without remedy And no excuse shall be accepted, especially that they did it to give employment to Priests at the Confessional, or to Lawyers at the bar, or to enslave any one Or if any such Spirit shall make any one sick, or cause accident to give any one employment to so called doctors, second death may take him, or her, or it, away, and that too without remedy; or the Son of Man the same And farther, in view of the war now raging in Europe, caused by the crimes of those who have passed unpunished, I would farther ask that Truth be declared the God of the land, and the worship of Truth be inaugurated by all telling the Truth at all times, or keeping silent And for all that are coming to the Spirit World to come prepared for the battle, Revelations 16th Chap and 14th verse, and Revelations 10 Chap and 10 verse You each for yourselves will find full instructions, Matthew 5th Chap, and 23d, 24th and 25th verses how to prepare. THE SORTIE ON TUESDAY.

The Prussians in Hot Pursuit.

The Conference on the Eastern Question.

England Demands an Explanation.

THE FEELING IN RUSSIA.

Rumors of the Fall of Paris.

PRUSSIA'S POSITION ON THE RUSSIAN QUESTION.

Dispatch from King William.

THE SORTIE ON TUESDAY—THE FRENCH DRIVEN BACK.

London, 29. The following dispatch from Versailles early this morning has just been received here by way of Berlin. On Monday and Tuesday the forts around Paris, particularly those to the south of D'Ivry, Bicetre, Montrouge, Vanvres, D'Issy and Charenton, maintained a furious cannonade. As was expected by the Germans, this incessant firing was kept up merely to cover a sortie in force. On Tuesday, the Parisians came out towards L'Hay, supported by their gunboats in the Seine. At this point, the position of the 6th Prussian Corps was attacked fiercely. Simultaneously other sorties were made in other directions, with a view probably, to prevent reinforcements to the 5th corps. In all cases however the French were repulsed and driven back behind their fortifications. The entire Prussian loss in these actions, were only 7 officers and a few hundred men. The French lost 1500 in prisoners alone.

THE FRENCH BADLY BEATEN NEAR AMIENS.

The French have been badly beaten near Amiens. Their army was totally routed, and fled toward Arras. Four French guns were captured in this engagement.

THE FIGHT ON MONDAY.

On Monday the main body of the French army attempted to force a passage toward Fontainebleau by a heavy and general attack. They encountered the 10th Prussian corps at Baune, a little village in the department of the Loire 26 miles north of Orleans. The Prussians were quickly reinforced with the 5th infantry, and 1st cavalry divisions. The French onslaught was repulsed with heavy loss in killed wounded and prisoners, especially the latter. Failing in this attempt the army of the Loire has withdrawn.

THE BATTLE AT BAUNE—THE PRUSSIANS PURSUING THE FRENCH.

Versailles, Nov. 30. It now appears that the greater part of the French army of the Loire was engaged against the Prussian 10th corps at Baune on Monday. From additional particulars which have just come to hand in the reports of the commanders there is no question but that the defeat of the French was most complete. At last accounts 1000 dead were left on the field by the fleeing French. 1700 unwounded prisoners had been captured by the Germans at last accounts and the number was constantly increasing, as the Prussians were in close pursuit.

THE SORTIE FROM PARIS

in the direction of St. Cloud, on Monday, was readily repulsed by the Prussians, who suffered only a slight loss. The people at Versailles were terribly excited during the battle.

London, Nov. 30. The Prussians have evacuated Bonzoincourt, which town had been held by them since the 1st inst. They also burned the village of Sury, in that neighborhood.

Antwerp, Nov. 30.

THE FRENCH PRISONERS

confined here recently made an unsuccessful attempt to escape. The government has taken measures to prevent a similar attempt.

THE GENERAL CONFERENCE.

London, Nov 30. The feeling this morning in money circles is healthful. The Telegraph is enabled to promise that a conference on the Eastern question will certainly be held in London.

The Times this morning urges King William as ally of England, to urge on the Czar the folly of his pretensions which the civilized world refuses to tolerate.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 30. The proposition for a conference on the Eastern question to be held at London is most favorably received here.

THE PRUSSIANS COLLECTING PROVISIONS FOR PARIS.

Versailles, Nov. 30. Immense quantities of provisions of all kinds have been collected here by the Germans for the use of the Parisians when they surrender.

ENGLAND WANTS GORTSCHAKOFF TO EXPLAIN.

Brussels, Nov. 30. The Independence Belge of to-day has a Berlin telegram announcing that England has agreed to accept the proposed conference for the settlement of the existing difficulty, provided Russia will satisfactorily explain Gortschakoff's first circular.

RUSSIAN LOYALTY.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 30. The government has received addresses from all parts of the Empire showing that the loyalty of the people makes Russia unassailable and fearless of any hostile alliance. Though no ministerial instructions have been given to the press, the St. Petersburg Gazette having adopted a partial policy, its sale in the the streets has been forbidden.

London, Nov. 30.

LORD LYONS

is awaiting the decision of the Tours government as to the matter of sending a Plenipotentiary to the conference at London.

THE STRASBOURG BANK.

Special to N. Y. World—

Berlin, Nov. 29. The deposits in the Strasbourg Savings Bank having been seized and converted to war purposes by the French government at the beginning of the war, the Prussian government has advanced one million francs to the bank to enable it to resume payments to-day.

Vienna, Nov. 29.

BISMARCK'S PROPOSAL

for a conference was made after he had arrived at a previous understanding with Gortschakoff.

No orders have been given by the Emperor of Austria for the formation of a new Cabinet.

Great quantities of corn have been bought in Danubian ports on account of the Russian government.

NAPOLEON BUYING AN ISLAND.

Napoleon is treating for the purchase of the island of Laconia, near Paqusa, formerly inhabited by Maximilian.

ALARM IN ROUMANIA.

The Russian circular has produced great alarm in Bucharest. The government is helpless and turns on every side for advice.—The agent of the Sublime Porte had arrived in Bucharest to propose an offensive and defensive alliance with the Sultan, on the condition that the Roumanian troops be entirely at the disposal of the Porte. Prince Charles hesitates to side with Turkey against Russia on any condition.

THE TURKISH ARMY.

The first corps d'armee of Turkey is ordered to Schumla. The fortresses of the Danube are being rapidly armed. The third army corps of Turkey is ordered to Roustchouk, Varna and Silistria. A number of horses have been bought in Austria for the Turkish cavalry. The Turkish fleet is ready for action.

RUMOR OF THE FALL OF PARIS.

London, Nov. 30—5 p m. A rumor of the capitulation of Paris causes buoyancy in the stock market here.

Special to N. Y. Herald—

London, Nov. 30. The position taken by

PRUSSIA ON THE RUSSIAN QUESTION,

and which probably will be communicated to the British Cabinet to-day, is that, like Italy, having signed one treaty in March, 1856, for the purpose of guaranteeing the independence and integrity of the Turkish Empire, she is not like, England, France and Austria, who concluded an additional treaty on the 17th of April, 1856, by which they bound themselves to consider any infraction of any of the stipulations of the treaty of the 30th of March as a casus belli, and obliged themselves to fight for the maintenance of a clause to which a great Power cannot submit forever, and which does not in any way infringe the principle of the first treaty. So far as Prussia is concerned, therefore, she does not regard Russia's position as threatening war, because the St. Petersburg Cabinet does not intend to endanger the independence and integrity of Turkey.

The statement of Russia declared that any additional conquest of territory was undesirable, and relinquished the idea of creating a Greek Empire at Constantinople, under a Russian potentate. Neither do they intend to establish an extensive arsenal on the coast of the Black Sea. Under these circumstances it is confidently relied on that by diplomatic means an understanding may be arrived at by which the Powers that signed the treaty of Paris will accede to the Russian request regarding the neutralization of the Black Sea. To this end Prussia offers her mediation.

Special to N. Y. World.

London, 30. Queen Victoria visited Eugenie to-day at Chiselhurst, remaining three hours.

The Times to-day reviews the story that terms of peace have been settled between King William and Napoleon, by which the latter cedes Strasburg and Metz, and returns to France at the head of the Imperial army. The Times editorially declares this highly probable.

The position of the Germans is now so embarrassing, as to render Bismarck anxious to escape on any terms.

All the journals ridicule the German dispatches, claiming victories in the late engagements with the army of the Loire, and says it is clear that the French at least held their own.

The talk in the clubs favors the idea of the Tory administration, to succeed the present ministry.

Sir Roderick Murchison, whose condition had excited alarm is better.

The Euxine question approaches a peaceful solution. It is confidently expected that a conference for its settlement will be held at London. London is in a pacific mood, and all parties feel sure of peaceful results.

M. About, had a leading editorial in the Soir, which was a cry for peace. It has been reprinted by order of Bismarck, and distributed among the soldiers, with the statement added, that M. About has a villa under the guns of M. Valerian.

DISPATCH FROM KING WILLIAM—COMPLETE DEFEAT OF THE ARMY OF THE LOIRE.

Berlin, 30. The Queen has received the following from King William, Tuesday 29:—Frederick Charles reports the complete defeat of the army of the Loire, in the battle of Monday, in which the French had the 20th Corps, probably the 18th, and portions of the 15th and 16th Corps engaged. A thousand French were found dead on the field; 4000 wounded, and 1000 were taken prisoners. Gen Arvilles is reported wounded. The German loss was 1000, among them a few officers.

London, 30—6.30 p. m. The Globe this p. m. publishes the announcement of the capitulation of the entire army of the Loire. The report can be traced to no authentic source, nothing was known of such an event at the German Legation here at 9 o'clock to-night.

Special to the World—

London, 30—Letters by balloon from Paris, private letters from Versailles and despatches from Berlin all concur in representing the prospects of the French as extremely gloomy.

The Germans in late engagements with the army of the Loire lost enormously, still their positions have been maintained.

The efforts of General Aurelles to advance to the relief of Paris has failed. The provisions of Paris have almost exhausted; scarcely a fortnight's supply remain.

In high political circles in London the action of the French government on the Eastern question gives lively satisfaction.

Berlin, 30—Private dispatches from Vienna represent that Austria, England and Italy accept the Prussian proposal for a conference, with the understanding that the claims of Russia will be prejudiced by her participation therein.

Tours, 29.—To the English dispatch relative to a conference, received yesterday, no answer has been returned. The government is inclined to consider England's conduct irregular in urging the adhesion of France to a proposition from Prussia.

NEW YORK ITEMS.

New York, Nov 30.

Judge Spencer of the Superior Court to-day heard and reserved a decision on the motion set aside in the recent report of ex-U. S. Senator Doolittle as referee, in the suit of George T. Gray against Fisk & Belden, and for $20,000 damages on the ground that he had been bribed, having at first come to a conclusion entirely different from the final report. Dudley Field opposed the motion in indignant terms, and Mr. Doolittle also denied being influenced by his friendship for Mr. Field, though he had dined and wined with him during the progress of the suit. A transaction in Erie stock is at the bottom of the case.

Judge Nelson, on the way from his home at Cooperstown to assume official duties at Washington, visited the U. S. Court in this city to-day. He has recovered entirely from the effect of the sunstroke last summer, and appears in quite vigorous health.

Thomas Porter, 10 years old, was sentenced to State Prison to-day for ten years, on five distinct charges of felonious assault.

Marshall, who was arrested this morning for forging the endorsement of John Stinson, Treasurer of the Rockport (Mass.) Granite Company, to a check for $12,000, is still in custody, and refuses any explanation of the manner in which the check—which had been deposited in the station D. Post Office—came into his possession. The forgery was detected simply by the clumsy manner in which it was executed, Marshall having evidently mistaken the word "Treasurer" in the body of the check for the name of the person to whom it was payable, and therefore endorsed it "J. S. Treasurer."

The new census of this city will begin on Saturday or Monday, all the old Marshals being re-appointed and a sufficient additional number to give one to each election district, as recently established by Mayor Hall. The work will be performed as rapidly as possible, there being only four questions: name, nativity, age and occupation, to be asked.

A number of railroad men from New York visited Toronto last week to investigate the narrow gauge railways. The Toronto, Grey and Bruce road was selected for the purpose of the examination. The result was entirely satisfactory, and the opinion almost unanimous that the narrow gauge was far preferable to the broad one for short tributary roads.

THE HALLOWELL MURDER TRIAL.

County Attorney Whitehouse's opening of the case for the prosecution occupied about an hour, Tuesday forenoon, and was pronounced a model of brevity and clearness.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON.

The court-room was packed, 200 women being in the audience, who appeared intensely anxious to catch every word.

James E. Knight, an assistant employed by Mr. Laflin, testified to discovering the accused, Hoswell, at about 15 minutes past 9 o'clock, on the fatal evening, with his murderous knife in hand, in encounter with Laflin in the back room of the shop, where, according to the theory of the government, the fatal gash was cut in the throat of the victim, though the government theory is also that he had previously dealt him a severe blow, with the same weapon, penetrating the breast bone, as he was emerging from the doorway of the prisoner's house.

F. O. T. Orcutt testified that he was in a shop which adjoined Mrs. Hoswell's sitting-room, and hearing a noise in her room, he ran and saw Laflin in a bloody condition, and Hoswell behind him. City Marshal Fowler soon came up and put hand-cuffs on Hoswell. I heard some one say to him, "See your hellish work," or words to that effect; to which he replied, "What would you have done if you had caught a man in bed with your wife?" After which I took notice of Laflin's clothing and found them in as good condition as any gentleman's would be; they were buttoned up. I think his hat was in his hand.

Eben B. Allen testified to being called to the scene of the murder by outcries, and to seeing Laflin bleeding, going towards his shop from Mrs. Hoswell's rooms and Hoswell following with a knife and pistol, and to hearing him say that he had been watching for Laflin for some time. He testified to Laflin's clothes being bloody, but buttoned up and in perfect order. A. H. Davis testified to Laflin's buying a carpet of him for Mrs. Hoswell, on the afternoon of the murder.

Twelve or fourteen witnesses were examined, the most important evidence being that of the physicians in regard to Laflin's fatal wounds. Mrs. Laflin with her three sons, were in attendance. Mrs. Hoswell was put in the witness box, but her testimony was objected to by the counsel for the defence.

The government have rested their case for the present, having obtained enough evidence to prove the fact of the murder.

The opening argument of the defence will be made this morning by Mr. Libby, and Hoswell will testify in his own behalf.

TROUBLE WITH THE CABLE LINES. We have received the following dispatch with reference to the partial interruption of cable communication:

New York, 3.45 p. m. Nov. 29.

The steamer Robert Lowe, sailed from Heart's Content Saturday last, to repair the Atlantic Cable of 1866, which was injured about 65 miles from that point. We have just received information that the cable of 1865 has also ceased to work, and the fault is about the same distance from Heart's Content. It is therefore probable that the steamer has grappled the wrong cable. As the steamer is on the spot it is hoped that both cables will soon be repaired. Although the French cable is able to transmit westward with about its usual facility, it is, from some unknown course, unable to transmit eastward except with great difficulty and very slowly. Notice is hereby given that for the present, messages cannot be received from any part of Europe. The public will be informed at the earliest moment that messages can be received from Europe.

NEW MAGAZINES.

THE LONDON QUARTERLY REVIEW for October is the most brilliant number of this periodical that we have seen for a long time. The article on the "German Patriotic Song" will command general attention, while the two leading articles on the war are able and exhaustive. Published by the Leonard Scott Publishing Co., New York.

LITTELL'S LIVING AGE, No. 1382, has besides the usual well selected serial stories and shorter sketches and poems, an article from the Edinburgh Review, supposed to have been written by Mr. Gladstone, Prime Minister of England, on the present state of affairs between "Germany, France and England," which will be read with interest by all. Published by Littell & Gay, Boston.

THE LITTLE CORPORAL for December is embellished with a seasonable and decidedly jolly frontispiece called "The Snow Man," followed by the story of "Anne Hansel's Christmas Eve under the Snow," the conclusion of Mrs. Miller's interesting story of "Fighting the Enemy," and "Tommy's Dinner," a Thanksgiving rhyme. Sewell & Miller, Chicago, Publishers.

EXTENSIVE FIRE IN CONCORD, N. H. A dispatch from Concord, N. H., yesterday, announced that a large fire was raging there, which broke out in the Spring factory of Palmer & Co. The fire had communicated to two stables adjoining the spring factory and to a store-house of Ward, Humphrey & Dodge. The flames were blowing with great force on the gasometre of the Gas Company, and fears were entertained of an explosion. There was a strong wind blowing and the fire bade fair to be extensive.

A later dispatch gives the following particulars:—

Concord, N. H., Nov. 30—2 P. M. The fire which broke out with such fierceness this forenoon and threatened serious destruction, was effectually held in check by the Fire Department. It originated in the basement of a large new store warehouse built by Col. D. A. Ward and not yet completed for the accommodation of the agricultural and hardware house of Ward, Humphrey & Dodge, and the steel spring manufactory of Palmer & Co. The building was not yet occupied and a roofing composition of petroleum and resin was heating in the basement, to which the flames communicated, and spread with fearful rapidity to the barrels of resin and petroleum. The woodwork was entirely destroyed, but the walls remain. Loss $2000. No insurance. The livery stable of Charles Norton was burned and was owned by D. A. Ward. Loss $800. Covered by insurance. Mr. Norton's stock was removed, all but the hay and grain. Loss $600. Insurance $2000. A wooden storehouse, owned by D. A. Ward and occupied by Ward, Humphrey & Co., was burned. Loss on the building, $600. Insured. The firm's loss on stock is $1000. Insurance $1500. The Eagle Hotel stable was but slightly damaged. The force pumps of the railroad companies aided the fire department materially.

Taking the reporter's book, he wrote in a very legible hand, "Miyako, Ahma, Harima, and other place."

R.—Have you had many visitors to-day?

M.—(With a peculiar smile)—Yes; much report. Come all day. Big trouble.

Accepting this rather plain hint, the reporter excused himself on the plea of urgent business.

POLITICAL AND PERSONAL

Carlo Bassini, probably better known than any other instructor of vocal music in New York, died last Saturday, at his residence in Irvington, N. J., in his fifty-eight year.

When the Senate meets on Monday next, Hon. Wm. Windom will take his seat as Senator from Minnesota, by appointment of the Governor, to supply the vacancy occasioned by the death of Senator Norton.

Isaiah Blood of Ballston, Spa, democratic State Senator from the 15th district, died at Saratoga, N. Y., of typhoid fever, Tuesday night, after an illness of two months.

Bishop McIlvaine, arrived in New York from Liverpool on Wednesday.

McKenzie of the 7th Virginia district, will contest Braxton's seat in the next Congress.

THE JAMAICA CABLE. Later advices from Kingston, Jamaica, say the cable expedition steamers Dacia and Suffolk, convoyed by her Majesty's ship Vestal, was to leave on Monday the 21st inst., for St. Thomas, to lay the cable from St. Thomas to Puerto Rico, and from Puerto Rico to Jamaica. The grappling for the Aspinwall cable would not be resumed until later in the season, and the electricians left by Sir Charles Bright on the Isthmus, would join the expedition immediately and proceed to St. Thomas.

FATAL AFFRAY IN KENTUCKY. Last Saturday the neighbors of Simeon Andrews assembled at his house in Fayette County, Ky., to attend a church festival. A difficulty occurred about a dog which resulted in Benjamin Bogy, the only white man present shooting into the house and wounding several negroes. The negroes returned the fire and mortally wounded Bogy. Two of the negroes were arrested charged with killing Bogy.

CENTRAL RAILROAD,
OF IOWA,
CONNECTING ST. LOUIS AND ST. PAUL.
Now Nearly Completed.

This road is built by a Company of strong capitalists, who have pushed their work forward at a rapid rate.

ONE MILLION OF THE
First Mortgage
7 Per Cent Gold Bonds of the Company remain, which are offered at the very low rate of 90 and Accrued Interest.

Among their advantages are—
1st. The road is nearly finished, and the cars are expected to run across the State in 60 days.
2d. The road has been built only of the best material, the iron having been manufactured expressly for it, at a much higher cost than that usually paid.
3d. It runs through almost superb agricultural country.
4th. It has great advantages in carrying coal North and bringing lumber South.
5th. The Mortgage is only $16,000 per mile, while many other roads are bonded to double this amount.
6th. The road is principally owned by bankers and other capitalists, who have invested a large sum in its construction, and who have every reason to take care of its obligations.
7th. A first Mortgage for so small an amount, upon a road so near completion, and in such strong hands, may well be considered a perfectly safe security.

We believe there will be no more favorable time to sell Governments, and buy really First-class Railroad Securities—such as these—than the present. With any further decline in Gold, Governments must decline also.

THY BROTHER'S BLOOD CRIETH.

BY CHRISTINA G. ROSSETTI.

All her corn-fields rippled in the sunshine,
All her lovely vines, sweet-laden, bowed;
Yet some weeks to harvest and to vintage;
When, as one man's hand, a cloud
Rose and spread, and, blackening, burst asunder
In rain and fire and thunder.

Is there naught to reap in the days of harvest?
Hath the vine in her day no fruit to yield?
Yea, men tread the press, but not for sweetness,
And they reap a red crop from the field.
Build barns, ye reapers, garner all aright,
Though your souls be called to-night.

A cry of tears goes up from blackened homesteads,
A cry of blood goes up from reeking earth;
Tears and blood have a cry that pierces Heaven
Through all its Hallelujah swells of mirth;
God hears their cry, and though He tarry, yet
He doth not forget.

Mournful Mother, sitting in the dust weeping,
Who shall comfort thee for those who are not;
As thou didst, these do to thee; and heap the measure
And heat the furnace sevenfold hot:
As thou once, now these to thee—who pitieth thee
From sea to sea?

O thou King, terrible in strength, and building
Thy strong future on thy past!
Though he drink the last, the King of Sheshach.
Yet he shall drink at the last.
Art thou greater than great Babylon,
Which lies overthrown?

Take heed, ye unwise among the people;
O ye fools, when will ye understand
He that planted the ear shall He not hear,
Nor He smite who formed the hand?
"Vengeance is Mine, is Mine," thus saith the Lord.
O Man, put up thy sword.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

(Concluded).

After this evening she passed Mr. Morgan without speaking to him, much to the old man's concern. The days went by, and not one passed without a visit from Edgar Comberford, although in that first evening Alice had expressly forbidden him to call again during her husband's absence. He was not easily to be put aside. He knew the weakness of the girl's unschooled nature, and knew how to trade upon it. His tender talk of the life might have been had Alice been free—his glowing descriptions of distant lands which those two might have seen side by side, of countries where the commonest life was a kind of poetry—charmed her in spite of herself. She knew the guilt involved in this dangerous pleasure, and hated herself for her weakness, and yet looked forward with a dull sense of dread to her husband's return. Nothing could tempt her to sin against him, she told Edgar, however unsuited they might be to each other. She was his wife, and would do her duty to the end of her life. But the tempter was not convinced.

One day she ventured to ask him about Bessie Raynor. He gave a little start at the sound of the name, but declared that it was strange to him; and Alice was weak enough to believe his assertion. It had been a mere ruse of the old clerk's to frighten her, she thought. The poor dismal old creature had tried to make her miserable about the only acquaintance that gave her any pleasure.

Mr. Hartfield had been ten days away when Mr. Comberford came in upon Alice one morning with a grave countenance. The neat little parlor maid was just clearing away the breakfast things when he came in, and lingered inquisitively to hear the meaning of this early visit.

"I am very sorry to say I have rather bad news of your husband, Mrs. Hartfield," he said to Alice's expression of surprise. "He has been taken ill with some kind of low fever, which is a good deal about now. Don't be alarmed; it is nothing very serious; but he wants you to go across to him. His doctor, a Frenchman, has written to me, but there is an enclosure for you from the patient."

He handed her a slip of foreign paper, on which there were a few lines in her husband's hand:

"DEAR ALICE: Please come to me at once, if you are not afraid of the journey. Comberford can escort you, as he is wanted over here. Yours, &c., G. H."

"You'll not be afraid of the journey?" asked Mr. Comberford.

"Not at all; I should not mind going alone."

"But, you see, I am due there, so you cannot deny me the pleasure of being your escort."

"It is not a very pleasureable occasion," said Alice, with some embarrassment, as she twisted the slip of writing round and round her fingers. She was wondering whether the strict moralists of Norbury would altogether approve of this journey.

Mr. Comberford gave her little time to think. He went into the clerk's office to tell Mr. Bestow of his employer's illness, and to make inquiries about the London trains. William Morgan looked up from his desk and watched him thoughtfully, as he lounged against the mantelpiece reading the time-table.

There was no possibility of going to Paris earlier than by the night mail. Mrs. Hartfield would have to go first to London—a three hours' journey. There was a train left Norbury at a quarter to four in the afternoon, which would take the travellers in ample time for the Dover mail. Mr. Comberford decided upon going by this, and left Alice in order to make his preparations for the journey. He did not, however, go back to the Hall, but fidgeted in and out of the lawyer's house several times in the course of the day on some pretence or other, spending the intervals at the Crown, where he drank brandy and soda-water to an extent that astonished the waiters. But in spite of all he had drank he looked pale and anxious when he came at three o'clock ready to take Mrs. Hartfield to the station.

Alice was just stepping into the fly, when William Morgan came out of the house, with a carpet-bag in one hand and a morocco office-bag in the other.

"Why, where the deuce are you going?" asked Mr. Comberford.

"I am your fellow-traveller, sir; at least, I am going second-class by the same train."

"To London?"

"No, sir, to Paris. Mr. Bestow sends me across with papers."

"Why, what consummate folly of Bestow's! Your master is not fit for business. He won't be able to attend to anything for days to come."

"I hope he may be better than you think, sir. In any case, I am bound to obey Mr. Bestow's orders."

He spoke in a mechanical kind of tone, nor did his countenance express the faintest interest in his work.

Mr. Comberford laughed grimly to himself as they drove away with the old man on the box.

"That old fool's company can make very little difference," he muttered, and then grew moodier than he was wont to be in Alice Hartfield's company.

He brightened considerably by and by, when they were alone in a first-class compartment, flying Londonward at an express rate; and succeeded in making Alice believe that her husband's illness was only a trifling matter, and that she had no occasion to be anxious about him.

"Men think so much of the slightest touch of illness," he said, "and are always in a hurry to summon their wives. We are such selfish creatures, you see, and so miserable without the comfort of a woman's presence."

And then he went on to speak of his own solitary position.

"What is to become of me in the hour of sickness, Alice," he asked, "with no one but a gloomy old housekeeper to care for me?"

"You will marry by and by, I daresay, and have a wife to care for you."

"Never, Alice. There is only one woman on earth that I care for, and if she cannot be my wife, I will go down to my grave a bachelor."

"You must not talk to me like that; it is taking a mean advantage of our companionship. You know that I am with you at my husband's wish."

"Yes, you have his order for the journey. Poor dear George, what a fine bold hand he writes, doesn't he?"

Mrs. Hartfield did not see the sardonic grin which accompanied this trivial remark, nor did Mr. Comberford again offend her by any allusion to his hopeless passion. It was pitch dark when they reached Dover, not a star in the sky, and a high wind blowing. There was considerable confusion in getting on board, and Mrs. Hartfield scarcely knew where she was till she found herself standing on the deck of a steamer arm-in-arm with Edgar Comberford, while the lamps of Dover receded rapidly from her vision. Her companion persuaded her to remain on deck.

"There is an atmosphere of sickness below that would inevitably make you ill," he said. "Let me find you a comfortable corner, where you can sit all night, secure from wind and weather."

He found a sheltered nook by one of the paddle-boxes, and here Mrs. Hartfield sat comfortably wrapped in shawls and railway rugs, and amused by her fellow-traveller's conversation. He seemed now in the highest possible spirits, and did his uttermost to entertain her; but well as he succeeded in doing this, he could not make her quite unconscious of the passage of time.

"I thought that the steamer crossed in an hour and a half," she said; "but we have surely been more than two hours on board."

"Oh dear no, I think not. There's a good deal of wind to-night, however, so I dare say they'll be a little longer than usual."

Mrs. Hartfield questioned him about the time more than once after this, but he was unable to give any definite answer.

"It was all right," he said vaguely, and his spirits mounted as the boat plunged gaily through the waters.

With the first gleam of morning they neared the shore. Their luggage was ready for landing among the first, only a couple of carpet-bags and a portmanteau, which was pounced upon steadily by officials, and borne off to a building in the distance.

Mr. Comberford led Alice up the steps, and put her at once into a fly that loomed duskily out upon them in the chilly atmosphere. He came back to her presently with the luggage and seated himself by her side; but before he could rejoin her, she had asked the driver the name of the place, and he had told her she was in Ostend.

She looked at Edgar Comberford with a face so full terror. "What a wretched mistake!" she said; "we have come by the wrong steamer. Why did you not tell me the truth on board? But of course we can go on from here to Paris. It is only the loss of time that annoys me."

"My darling Alice, you are as innocent as a baby," exclaimed Mr. Comberford with a triumphant smile. "We are no more going to Paris, than we are going to the moon. All stratagems are fair in love and war. George Hartfield is as well as ever he was in his life, and the little note you so implicitly believed in was only a specimen of imitative penmanship by your humble servant. I wanted to get you away from that dreary old town without esclandre, my love. We are bound for the sunny Rhineland, there to forget that there is such a place as Norbury, or such a person as George Hartfield."

"And do you think I will go with you?"

"My dearest, I do not think you so foolish as to resist your fate. The Rubicon is crossed and return utterly impossible. We gave your husband's old clerk the slip at Dover. He will be in Paris at seven o'clock, with the story of your journey, which will at once be set down as an elopement."

"I am not so weak or so wicked as you think!" cried Alice, snatching her hand indignantly away from his grasp. "Foolish and guilty as I have been in listening to you, I am not so base as to bring dishonor on my husband's name. You must take me on to Paris, Mr. Comberford, or I must go alone."

"Impossible!"

"Where are we going now?"

"To an hotel. I must get you some breakfast. There is no train for Paris till seven; there is one for Cologne, the same hour, and it is by that we are to travel."

Alice looked at him in despair. Whatever love she had felt for him died a sudden death in this moment of agony. How gladly she would have welcomed her husband's honest face! How bitterly she reproached herself for her neglect of the old clerk's warning!

"He was my truest friend," she thought "and I refused to listen to him."

They were at the door of an hotel by this time, and while the driver was ringing, a second fly drove up, and an old man alighted. It was Mr. Morgan, the clerk.

Alice gave a cry of delight, and called him to the door of the vehicle.

"There has been a mistake," she said; "Mr. Comberford brought me by the wrong boat. But, thank Heaven, you came the same way. You can take me on to Paris"

"Or back to Norbury, whichever you prefer madam," answered the old clerk respectfully: "Mr. Comberford has an unfortunate habit of making mistakes. This is not the first time he has signed another man's name by mistake. There was an awkward business about a forged accommodation bill some four years ago, which induced Mr. Comberford to cross the Atlantic."

"What do you mean, Sir?" cried the younger man indignantly.

"I mean that there is no one in the world who knows you better than Bessie Raynor's uncle," answered William Morgan. "I never set eyes on your false face till you came into my master's office; but I have heard your history from the lips of a woman who loved you, and who would fain have made the best of it. You have not changed for the better since your days of poverty, and you have not taken the trouble to ascertain what became of the girl who shared your hardships and disgrace. She is living with me, Sir, three miles from Norbury, where you are now so grand a gentleman. I told this lady to beware of you, but she was too confiding to doubt you. I think, however, you have thrown off the mask too soon."

"Don't lecture me, Sir. The lady must decide between us. Whatever wrong I have done has been done for her sake. I had reason to think she loved me."

This was said with a tone of bitter reproach and then the young man stood awaiting his fate with a moody countenance.

"I think I had better take you on to Paris, Mrs. Hartfield," said the clerk. "It would set Norbury folks talking if we went straight home. You can tell your husband the whole truth, and he can settle the score with this gentleman."

"I am going straight on to Germany," said Mr. Comberford. "If Hartfield wants me he must follow me there."

He walked into the hotel, the door of which had just been opened by a sleepy looking waiter, leaving Alice under the care of the old clerk.

She went on to Paris, with him, and there made the best story she could to her husband humbly confessing her own shortcomings.

"I suppose I must have flirted with him a little, George," she said slyly, "or he would never have done such a wild, wicked thing."

And this confession had a very good effect upon George Hartfield, who felt that he had been wanting in due care, and consideration for his pretty young wife. He withdrew himself from the club at the Crown, left off billiards and took to rowing Alice on the river in the summer evenings, and reading to her in the winter. He did not follow Mr. Comberford to Germany, but contented himself by writing a formal letter, relinquishing the conduct of that gentleman's affairs.

Mr. Comberford came back to the Hall, three years afterwards, with an aristocratic but by no means agreeable wife. Before returning he took steps to settle a modest annuity upon Mr. Morgan's niece, Bessie Raynor, an annuity which was accepted by the young woman, but the quarterly payments of which were carefully banked against that rainy day when William Morgan should be no more. The old man scorned to touch a cent of Edgar Comberford's money.

A STARTLING QUESTION.—The Christian Register relates a singular incident of the days of the anti-slavery excitement.

"Those familiar with the incidents of the great anti-slavery struggle will recall the meeting in which Frederick Douglass, with an eloquence inspired by a personal knowledge of the wrongs of his race, drew a dark picture of the aspects of the hour. Everything was gloomy. The slaveholders were carrying everything before them. It seemed as if there was little hope for the crushed and degraded African. The audience held their breath with a feeling akin to despair at the words of the speaker. The cause seemed well nigh lost. Just then a tall, strange figure—that of a negro woman—rose in front of the platform. Her eye was flashing with indignation at the recital of the wrongs she had heard. Still there was in her face an expression of faith. With her hand raised, she fixed her eye on the orator, and in a shrill, sharp voice shouted the question: 'Frederick, is God dead?' The hearts of the audience were thrilled. The wail of despair was silenced by the cry of faith. Sojourner Truth was a humble negro woman. She had no advantages of education, and had little knowledge. But she had a deep and rich religious experience which grew out of her piety. Hence, when those richer than she with the world's knowledge doubted, and were ready to despair, the simple, child-like piety of her heart gave her trust. 'Frederick, is God dead?' 'No,' said she; 'He is not dead; therefore we must not despair.'"

"For ways that are dark, and tricks that are vain," servantgalism is peculiar—which the same we will rise to explain. A very good story, indicative of the above, and which bears the impress of truth, is told of a New York lady and her maid. The lady had given the damsel a Saturday afternoon holiday. At the importunities of her children, the lady afterwards went with her family to a matinee performance at a theatre. Immediately in front of her, at the theatre, she remarked a gorgeously attired female, whose costume, from her point lace hat, black lace shawl, rich striped silk dress, and diamond ear-rings and shoulder-clasps, seemed strangely familiar to the matron. But why protract the inevitable sequel of this malapropos meeting? The harassing doubt which distracted the lady was alas! too soon solved. A contortion of the comedian's face, a loud, inane laugh from the gorgeously attired female, a horrid moment of recognition on the part of the lady, and the scandalous fact was developed that it was Angelina, and on her back her mistress's choicest wardrobe. "For ways that are dark," etc.

INSANITY AND CONSUMPTION?
Many are aware of the cause of their suffering, but none will confess. The records of the insane asylums and the melancholy deaths by consumption bear ample witness to the truth of the assertion.
The Constitution, once affected by organic weakness, requires the aid of medicine to strengthen and invigorate the system, which HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT OF BUCHU invariably does. A trial will convince the most skeptical.

BLOOD! BLOOD! BLOOD!
HELMBOLD'S
HIGHLY CONCENTRATED COMPOUND
FLUID EXTRACT SARSAPARILLA,
For purifying the Blood, removing all chronic constitutional diseases arising from an impure state of the Blood, and the only reliable and effectual known remedy for the cure of Scrofula, Scald Head, Salt Rheum, Pains and Swellings of the Bones, Ulcerations of the Throat and Legs, Blotches, Pimples on the Face, Tetter, Erysipelas and all Scaly Eruptions of the Skin,
AND BEAUTIFYING THE COMPLEXION.
NOT A FEW of the worst disorders that afflict mankind arise from the corruption that accumulates in the Blood. Of all the discoveries that have been made to purge it out, none can equal in effect HELMBOLD'S COMPOUND EXTRACT OF SARSAPARILLA. It cleanses and renovates the blood, instills the vigor of health into the system, and purges out the humors which make disease. It stimulates the healthy functions of the body, and expels the disorders that grow and rankle in the blood. Such a remedy that could be relied on has long been sought for, and now the public have one on which they can depend. Our space here does not admit of certificates to show its effects, but the trial of a single bottle will show to the sick that it has its virtues surpassing anything they have ever taken.
Two tablespoonfuls of the Extract of Sarsaparilla added to a pint of water is equal to the Lisbon Diet Drink, and one bottle is fully equal to a gallon of the Syrup of Sarsaparilla, or the decoction as usually made.
O
Helmbold's Rose Wash,
An excellent Lotion for diseases arising from habits of dissipation, used in connection with the Extracts Buchu and Sarsaparilla, in such diseases as recommended. Evidence of the most responsible and reliable character will accompany the medicines. Also explicit directions for use, with hundreds of thousands living witnesses, and upwards of 30,000 unsolicited certificates and recommendatory letters, many of which are from the highest sources, including eminent Physicians, Clergymen, Statesmen, &c. The Proprietor has never resorted to their publication in the newspapers; he does not do this from the fact that his articles rank as Standard Preparations, and do not need to be propped up by certificates.
The Science of Medicine, like the Doric Column, should stand simple, pure, majestic, having fact for its basis, Induction for its pillar, and Truth alone for its Capital.
L
My Extract Sarsaparilla is a Blood Purifier, my Extract Buchu is a Diuretic, and will act as such in all cases.
Both are prepared on purely scientific principles—in vacuo—and are the most active measures of either that can be made. A ready and conclusive test will be a comparison of their properties with those set forth in the following works:
